

[IMAGE]

Durability Design Analysis for Building Envelopes

Description:As the demand for commercial zero-energy buildings drives the need for better-insulated and airtight enclosures, hygrothermal performance becomes an increasingly important consideration in the design process. This course explains the physics of heat and moisture transfer, with an application of hygrothermal analysis through the computer modeling tool WUFI® in order to design for durability.

HSW:No

Duration: 1.0 hour(s)

Format: PDF